Conclusion: _____ God and _____ a Step.

What's something in your own life that feels too big and overwhelming for you to handle?

What's something in your life that seems so small, ordinary, or mundane to be of any significance?

What are some things that make it difficult to believe God is always with us and always working? What might be some small ways throughout your day that you can remember God is with me and he is at work in and through me?

Do you believe you recognize the significance and importance of the Holy Spirit? What keeps you from calling out to and relying on the Spirit to help you love, trust, and obey Jesus?

Think back to the big thing (or things) that you listed above that feel too big and overwhelming to handle. How might that big thing be an opportunity to rely on God's Spirit?

Can you think of a previous time in your life where you faced something big and you saw God come through for you in a big way?

What are some of the things in your life that you do over and over again but you're not sure they are having any significance or impact? How might those small things be an opportunity to trust God's Spirit?

Can you think of something big God has done in your own life that he's brought about through lots of small things?

What's one area (big or small) where you feel like God wants you to trust Him and Take a Step (or keep taking steps)? What is that step?
